SADDLERY HARDWARE CO. V. H MILLS.

Supreme Court of New Hampshire. WHERE A DEALER, IN SELLING MERCHANDISE, AGREES NOT TO SELL TO ANY ONE ELSE IN THE SAME CITY, WITHOUT ANY LIMI-TIME AS WILL GIVE THE BUYER A REASONABLE OPPORTUNITY TO DISPOSE OF THE GOODS IN THE USUAL COURSE OF TRADE. WITH THE EXERCISE OF DUE DILIGENCE.

This was an action for a breach of contract. The defendant agreed in writing to sell plaintiffs 622 blankets and "not to sell plaid blankets to any one else in New York City." This agreement was made on March 5, 1892, and was kept by both parties, except that defendants sold plaid blankets to parties other than the plaintiffs soon after March 5, 1892. Plaintiffs after-wards bought other blankets of defenwards bought other blankets of defendants.

The court says:
Contracts in restraint of trade are not favored in the law, and are not to be extended by construction beyond the fair and natural import of the language used. As the contract not to sell contains no limit as to time, the reasonable construction is that the parties intended it to continue so long as necessary to protect the plaintiffs from competition in the sale of the goods purchased. If the contract had been not to sell to others in New York so long as the plaintiffs would buy blankets of the defending would buy blankets of the defendants. others in New York so long as the plain-tiffs would buy blankets of the defen-dants, the case would be altogether different from the present. Here was not only no agreement to purchase more blankets, but an entire omission of the quantity and prices of future purchases. It cannot be supposed the parties intended the restraint to last after the necessity for it ceased to exist. Such a construction would be unreasonable. The object of the parties was to prevent competition. So here the object of the parties—the prevention of competition—required the defendants to refrain from sale to other New York dealers until the plaintiffs could sell, in the ordinary course of business, the blankets which they bought on the falth of the defendant's contract. The true rule was given in the instruction to the jury, toothers in New York continued for such length of time as would afford the plaintiffs a reasonable opportunity for disposing of the blankets in the usual course of trade, with the exercise of due diligence and skill. Whitehead, a popular young business man of Norfolk.

The parlors were tastefully decorated with paims, ferns and cut flowers in honor of the occasion, and the soft mellow light reflected from numerous banquet lamps shed a radiance o'er the scene which enhanced its beauty and impressiveness.

The bride was costumed in a tailor-made traveling gown, with hat and gloves to match, and carried Bride roses. The maid of honor was Miss Helena May Ogilsvie. She wore a white organdle trimmed in white satin ribbon, and carried white chrysanthemums.

Little Miss Alma Lee Tarrall, a niece of the bride, was the ring-bearer. She was attired in pink organdle.

The best man was Mr. Bruce Whitehead, a brother of the groom, and the tushers were Messrs. Walter H. and Albert T. Church, brothers of the bride. The gentlemen appeared in full dress, with white gloves and rose boutonnieres.

with white gloves and rose boutonnieres.

The ceremony was performed by Rev.
Daniel T. Merritt, pastor of Huntersville M. E. Church, beneath a beautiful arch of palms built between the windows of the front parlors. The wedding march was played by Mrs. W.
Nickerson.

At the conclusion of the nuptials an elegant reception was held and was enjoyed by a large number of guests, friends of the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead left on the Bay Line steamer for an extended bridal tour North. They will be at home to their friends at No. 42 Fenchurch street after December 5th.

The bridal presents were numerous,
beautiful and of intrinsic value.
